

About the London InterCommunity Health Centre

London InterCommunity Health Centre has been a part of your community for more than 25 years. We provide health and social services in a welcoming setting to individuals and families living across the city of London. The Health Centre is committed to creating an inclusive and safe space for all sexual orientations, gender identities and gender expressions.

Our two East London locations offer care by a team which includes doctors, nurse practitioners, nurses, social workers, dietitians, mental health specialists, health promoters and community health workers. The Health Centre also offers many programs that address the factors in our personal lives that affect our health. These include income, education, housing, food security, recreation and social supports. At the Health Centre, our vision is: building opportunities for healthy and inclusive communities.

Every One Matters.

Who We Are

Using an outreach approach, the YOW Team meets youth “where they are at.” In various community settings in North East and East London, the Youth Outreach Workers provide person-to-person contact with youth. Workers build trust with youth, families and the community, and support them to find appropriate programs and services. The YOW Team enhances and promotes the development of community based services and indigenous leadership.

What We Do

We are a group of five individuals with diverse backgrounds who honour and value community. We provide advocacy, mentorship, and service referrals for youth between the ages of 12 and 21 living in, going to school in, or playing in North East and East London.

Our goals are to:

- Promote youth and community engagement
- Make youth aware of community resources
- Promote barrier free access to these resources
- Increase youth access to resources and opportunities (personal development, education, creative, employment, leadership, engagement, recreation)
- Help youth to reach their full potential
