

Physician

For more than 30 years, the London InterCommunity Health Centre has provided health and social services to those who experience barriers to care including poverty, homelessness, language or culture, and complex and/or chronic health conditions including mental health and addictions. Today, with five busy clinics in three of London's most under-served regions, the organization is viewed as a community leader in newcomer health, care of marginalized women, issues of health equity, client-led service development and the advancement of partnerships that improve access to vital services for people who are at the margins in our community.

About the Position

Our growing health centre is in need of a primary care physician to work with a multi-disciplinary team to provide medical care and to address social determinants of health while using, or being willing to learn, harm reduction and trauma informed care approaches.

Our population includes those who experience barriers to care; those impacted by homelessness, mental illness, addiction, poverty, language barriers, and complex and/or chronic health conditions.

Our physicians are a part of an interdisciplinary team within a team care approach including onsite allied health services, same day social work support, system navigation access, and other team members devoted to addressing social determinants of health.

Our physicians are also supported by a corporate service department, on a salaried model (no OHIP billings or billing expenses), ensuring time available for patient appointments that address complex, interesting medical and social issues, without administrative overhead to be concerned about.

Physicians are dedicated to one clinic on a regular basis and provide coverage to other physicians in the Health Centre during periods of absence. All staff at the health centre work to full scope and knowledge transfer and skill enhancement among practitioners is high.

We can support physicians with a minimum of 19 hours per week up to 37.5 hours on a full-time basis, either in an employment staffing relationship, or a locum contract agreement.
